About This Game

11th November 1916, a young photographer leaves Canada to join the western front in Europe.

The same day, a German technician is told that his son is missing in action.

Both want to preserve their humanity and come back alive to their loved ones.

11-11: MEMORIES RETOLD is an emotional narrative adventure telling the stories of two soldiers on on both sides of the front during WW I. It is brought to life through a unique painterly style, whilst the combined voice acting talents of Elijah Wood and Sebastian Koch as Harry and Kurt, and an orchestral score from composer Olivier Deriviere, guide players through moments of both peace and despair.

I went for this game because of the overwhelming positive reviews. However I absolutely cannot relate to them, I really do wonder why I am so far off with my opinion from the majority of opinions. I find the game pretty boring. I have not come far though, but I have no real intentions to move on further in the game. I find the painted graphics irritating, the moving around in the world is very limited. Controlling the avatars feels clunky. Reminds me of a bad first person 3D game from the nineties - first attempts to create a 3D computer game with a tiring story.
